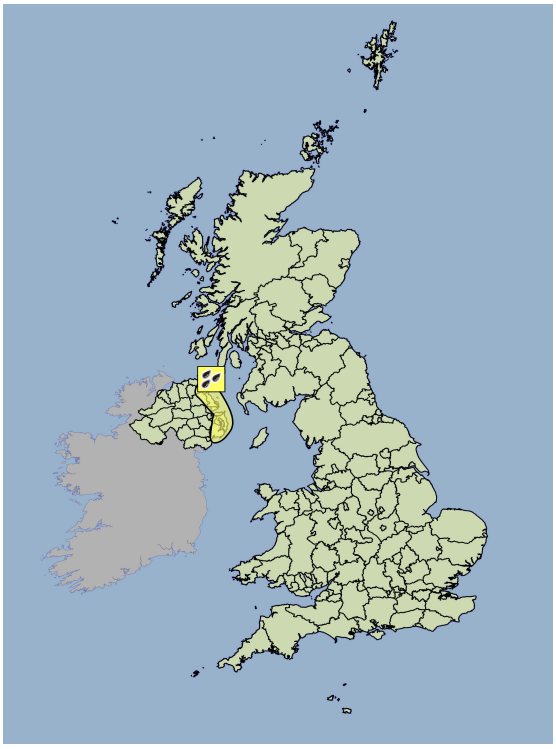
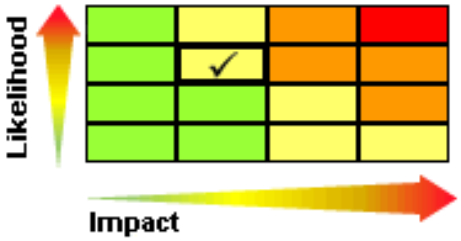
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
An active band of frontal rain will move north to affect the east of Northern Ireland, especially the coastal strip and adjacent high ground. Totals of around 20 mm are expected quite widely with localised totals of more than 30 mm.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 12:00 on Sat, 18th Jan 2014 until 18:00 on Sat, 18th Jan 2014

Bands of rain will affect the east of Northern Ireland at times through today, with some heavy rainfall in places.

The public should be aware that this rain will fall onto already saturated ground, increasing the risk of localised flooding.
